Fremont O. Zschokke

1994

Fremont O. Zschokke, 87, a Palo Alto native and descendant of the city's first settler, died April 25. A graduate of San Mateo Junior College and the University of California, he was the Palo Alto city surveyor until 1952. He then managed a cattle ranch for four years before becoming a construction engineer for the city of Campbell from 1957 to 1973. As he felt he was too young to retire, he started his own construction inspection business in Milpitas, inspecting jobs on his motorcycle until his retirement at the age of 82. He was a member of the Operating Engineers Union, Local 3. He was the grandson of Anna Probst Zschokke, the city's first settler, who established the school system; and of Fremont Older, the editor in chief of the San Francisco Call Bulletin. He is survived by his wife, Irene A. "Bobbie" Zschokke; a son, Phillip B. Zschokke of Palo Alto; three daughters, including Sandra L. Williams of Palo Alto; 17 grandchildren; and 14 great-grandchildren.

CREATORS OF THE LEGACY

Mary Grafton Campbell (1847-1913)

Mary Grafton Campbell was a physician who founded the Woman's Club of Palo Alto. After her medical training in New York, Heidelberg and Vienna, she married Kentucky-born attorney Ernest L. Campbell in Karlsruhe, Germany, in 1870. He practiced law in Denver for a time and then in San Francisco, eventually becoming a judge. The couple established a home in Palo Alto and Dr. Campbell did scientific work at Stanford University.

Initially, Campbell organized the Mother's Club at the Presbyterian Church and as an outgrowth of it, she founded the Woman's Club in 1894. The club is celebrating its own centennial this year. In the four years of Mary Grafton Campbell's presidency, the club's membership grew from 25 to more than 100 members who met its prerequisites: respectability and intelligence. The club fostered establishment of the public library and encouraged tree planting.

At the club's second meeting, secretary Anna Zschokke recorded, Campbell made "a stirring address, congratulating Palo Alto upon being no longer a sort of half-orphan but now having both city fathers and mothers, thus insuring a prosperous future, a nurturing of its spiritual and refining issues as well as its material welfare."

In a memorial tribute, Campbell's friend Julia Gilbert explained Campbell's maternal instincts, evidenced by her support of more than a dozen foster children: "Losing her own baby, she gave love and care to many children—13 girls and boys of other mothers she reared in part or fully. It was the attitude of motherhood that she unconsciously assumed toward every infant, enterprise or needy person that came within her influence . . .". ■
